

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Citywide Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 55% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 37% as a “good” place to live

Perceptions of safety

 21% of residents “strongly agree” and 60% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Satisfaction with City operations

15% of residents are “very satisfied” and 73% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Access to housing

9% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 33% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 32% of residents think it is “very easy” and 54% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

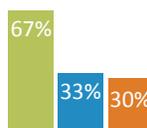

Resident perception of influence

9% of residents “strongly agree” and 58% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

 Residents identify race, disability, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Calhoun Isles Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 66% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 30% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

19% of residents are “very satisfied” and 70% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

33% of residents “strongly agree” and 63% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

7% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 35% rate the City as “good” at having high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

36% of residents think it is “very easy” and 53% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

14% of residents “strongly agree” and 63% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, disability, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Camden Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 27% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 48% as a “good” place to live

Perceptions of safety

 8% of residents “strongly agree” and 40% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Getting information about the City

 32% of residents think it is “very easy” and 57% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Diversity and equity priorities

 Residents identify race, disability, and age as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Satisfaction with City operations

6% of residents are “very satisfied” and 78% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Access to housing

4% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 22% rate the City as “good” at having high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Resident perception of influence

4% of residents “strongly agree” and 51% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Central Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 55% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 37% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

17% of residents are “very satisfied” and 64% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

 19% of residents “strongly agree” and 68% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

15% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 31% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 37% of residents think it is “very easy” and 51% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

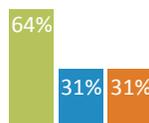

Resident perception of influence

13% of residents “strongly agree” and 55% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

 Residents identify race, disability, and age as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Longfellow Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 56% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 37% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

17% of residents are “very satisfied” and 73% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

27% of residents “strongly agree” and 65% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

10% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 29% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 33% of residents think it is “very easy” and 52% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

7% of residents “strongly agree” and 65% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, disability, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Near North Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 49% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 31% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

10% of residents are “very satisfied” and 77% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

2% of residents “strongly agree” and 32% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

4% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 37% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 20% of residents think it is “very easy” and 57% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

8% of residents “strongly agree” and 68% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, public assistance status, and disability

as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Nokomis Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 62% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 32% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

25% of residents are “very satisfied” and 65% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

26% of residents “strongly agree” and 67% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

11% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 34% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 35% of residents think it is “very easy” and 52% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

9% of residents “strongly agree” and 66% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, disability, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Northeast Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 53% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 40% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

14% of residents are “very satisfied” and 71% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

17% of residents “strongly agree” and 79% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

7% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 31% rate the City as “good” at having high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 30% of residents think it is “very easy” and 55% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

8% of residents “strongly agree” and 52% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, disability, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Phillips Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 41% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 41% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

13% of residents are “very satisfied” and 75% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

5% of residents “strongly agree” and 35% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

7% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 30% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 34% of residents think it is “very easy” and 44% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

8% of residents “strongly agree” and 53% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, religion, and public assistance status as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Powderhorn Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 52% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 44% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

15% of residents are “very satisfied” and 79% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

16% of residents “strongly agree” and 69% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

8% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 30% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 37% of residents think it is “very easy” and 55% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

11% of residents “strongly agree” and 45% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, sex, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 Southwest Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 62% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 34% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

20% of residents are “very satisfied” and 73% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

48% of residents “strongly agree” and 49% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

12% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 35% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

30% of residents think it is “very easy” and 57% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

Resident perception of influence

6% of residents “strongly agree” and 64% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

Residents identify race, age, and sexual orientation as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.

City of Minneapolis Resident Survey

2016 University Results

In 2016, the City of Minneapolis contracted with Wilder Research to conduct a survey of Minneapolis residents. This survey asked residents about their quality of life and their satisfaction with services provided by the City. The full report can be found here: minneapolismn.gov/residentsurvey

Quality of life

 63% of residents rate the City of Minneapolis as a “very good” and 34% as a “good” place to live

Satisfaction with City operations

9% of residents are “very satisfied” and 76% are “satisfied” with City services overall

Perceptions of safety

 14% of residents “strongly agree” and 63% “agree” that their neighborhood is safe

Access to housing

13% of residents rate the City as “very good” and 39% rate the City as “good” at having  high quality, affordable housing for all residents

Getting information about the City

 28% of residents think it is “very easy” and 56% think it is “somewhat easy” to get information about City services and programs

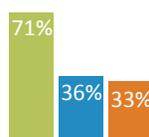

Resident perception of influence

8% of residents “strongly agree” and 60% “agree” that they feel like they have a voice

Diversity and equity priorities

 Residents identify race, sex, and ancestry/national origin as the highest equity priorities for the City to address

Overall, the survey results showed no substantial differences compared to previous years or other cities across the country. However, there are substantial differences in results across demographic groups and residential communities. See the full report for more information.